Call for Papers: Global Constitutionalism and Supranational Adjudicative Bodies: Global South Experiences vis-à-vis Hegemony

By:

Olabisi D. Akinkugbe

June 13, 2023

Call for Papers:

"Global Constitutionalism and Supranational Adjudicative Bodies: Global South Experiences vis-à-vis Hegemony"

The Norwegian Centre for Human Rights, University of Oslo is hosting a webinar/seminar on global constitutionalism, international adjudicative bodies, and hegemony on 16-17 November 2023.

See the detailed call for paper here.

We invite participants from different disciplines (including law, political science, and philosophy) to submit an abstract and a short bio by 21 August 2023.

The abstract (maximum 300 words) and a short bio (one page) shall be sent to Dr. Natalia Torres-Zuniga n.t.zuniga@nchr.uio.no and Dr. Juan-Pablo Perez-Leon-Acevedo pe.le.ace@gmail.com.

To foster interaction/feedback during the seminar, we kindly ask those selected to share their drafts (maximum 6000 words) by 6 November 2023.

We aim to publish select papers in a special issue of a peer-reviewed international journal and/or in an edited book. The event will be held mainly online (Zoom). Additionally, participants are welcome (self-funding) to attend the conference onsite (Oslo).

View online: Call for Papers: Global Constitutionalism and Supranational Adjudicative Bodies: Global South Experiences vis-à-vis Hegemony

Provided by Afronomicslaw