Webinar: Teaching and Researching International Economic Law in Africa, Strategies for Overcoming Publishing Challenges

By:

Olabisi D. Akinkugbe
Titilayo Adebola

July 2, 2021

International economic law is an emerging area of teaching, research, and practice in Africa. The area, which is a sub-field of international law, is concerned with the regulation of economic relations between states as well as the conduct of private parties involved in cross-border economic and business transactions.

The area includes subjects such as international investment law, international trade law, intellectual property law, international financial law, and international commercial arbitration.

In a bid to encourage research and publication in international economic law, the organisers of this event deem it fit to provide a platform to shape critical and context-driven analysis among faculty members in teaching and researching in the field in Africa. The webinar will feature a discussion of the following thematic areas, among others.

- Publishing in Reputable Journals and Avoiding Predatory/Fishing journals.
- Should I collaborate as an early researcher?
- Conferences and workshop participation/Abstract writing.
- How do I choose my research topics?
- How do I develop my research expertise?
- How do I source for research materials?
- How do I plan my publications?
- How do I address feedback and reviewers' comments?
- How do I balance my academic work with other commitments?

Date: Wednesday, July 14, 2021

Time: 3pm (GMT)

Platform: Zoom, to register for this event, click here

View online: Webinar: Teaching and Researching International Economic Law in Africa, Strategies for Overcoming Publishing Challenges

Provided by Afronomicslaw