The AfronomicsLaw Academic Forum (West Africa) hosted its inaugural Afronomicslab session on Saturday, 27th September 2025. This new series aims to strengthen both the theoretical and practical expertise of the Forum's regional representatives through immersive masterclasses and engaging fireside chats. Each session will feature distinguished academics and practitioners delivering thought-provoking lectures on key themes in international economic law.

The inaugural session was led by Mr. Leonard Ugbajah under the topic : "The Foundations of International Economic Law in Africa: Why It Matters for Our Future".

You can now watch the full recording of the inaugural AfronomicsLab session here:
