INVITATION TO APPLY

The International Legal Consortium \(ILC\) at the Campaign for Tobacco-Free Kids seeks six early- or mid-career lawyers based in sub-Saharan Africa to participate in the African Legal Fellowship Program.

The Fellowship Program is developed and provided in association with:

- The O'Neill Institute for Global Health Law at Georgetown University, Washington DC
- Kenyatta University School of Law, Nairobi
- ERSUMA, Higher Regional School of Magistracy, Porto-Novo

The Fellowship Program is designed to create a cohort of lawyers to join the international effort to combat the tobacco epidemic that kills up to eight million people each year globally. It will provide a unique opportunity to become experienced in law and public policy on tobacco control through a specially developed curriculum that will include:

- In-depth legal training through interactive online content, live webinars with global experts, tutorials and group work.
- Structured professional development through mentorship and observing work practices of ILC and O'Neill Institute Lawyers.
- In-country training based at academic institutions within Africa.
- Research projects.
- Assisting in drafting international tobacco control laws and contributing to technical assistance in defensive and proactive tobacco control litigation.

START DATE:
SEPTEMBER 2021

APPLICATION DEADLINE:
JULY 23, 2021

PROGRAM TERM:
18 MONTHS WITH 4-6 HOURS PER WEEK COMMITMENT

A STIPEND WILL BE PROVIDED

NUMBER OF POSITIONS: 6

THE PROGRAM WILL BE RUN IN ENGLISH

FELLOWS MUST BE PRACTICING LAWYERS BASED IN A COUNTRY WITHIN THE WHO AFRO REGION

CURRICULUM

The African Legal Fellowship Program's curriculum will cover:

- Evidence-based tobacco control policies;
- Legislative drafting and policy development;
- The World Health Organization Framework Convention on Tobacco Control and implementing guidelines;
- The tobacco industry's role in creating a global tobacco epidemic and its continued efforts to create new generations of tobacco and nicotine users;
- Litigation to defend against industry challenges and to enforce existing tobacco control laws;
- How tobacco control integrates with the wider UN treaty system, global NCD objectives and the human rights agenda;
- The roles of the WHO, government and civil society in advancing policy change;
- Communications training for lawyers; and
- Translating research and analysis into effective policy and regulatory proposals.

TIME COMMITMENT

The African Legal Fellowship Program will commence in September 2021. Fellows will be expected to commit to an 18-month program. The first 11 months will consist of weekly training sessions requiring a commitment of approximately 4-6 hours per week. This is followed with opportunities for research projects, mentoring, and observing and working alongside ILC and O'Neill Institute lawyers. If travel restrictions allow, there will be opportunities for in-person training at the Campaign for Tobacco-Free Kids' offices in Washington, DC during 2022.

STIPEND AND BENEFITS

The ILC will provide a stipend for the 18-month program, paid in installments. Fellows must be employed at a civil society organization, government office, academic institution or law firm, undertaking legal or public policy work, and must submit a letter of consent from their employer.

Each Fellow will also receive an additional stipend for the purchase of a laptop and other technology necessary to participate in the program.

If in-person training and mentorship occurs in Washington, D.C. during the Fellowship Program, the Campaign for Tobacco-Free Kids will cover transportation, hotel, and any other associated costs.

ACADEMIC QUALIFICATIONS AND ELIGIBILITY GUIDELINES

 - Give a specific example of a public interest law or policy project you have worked on and describe the outcome of that project.

The Campaign for Tobacco-Free Kids

The Campaign for Tobacco-Free Kids, headquartered in Washington D.C., is a leading non-profit organization in the fight to reduce tobacco use and its deadly toll on consumers in the United States and worldwide. Globally, the Campaign for Tobacco-Free Kids supports governments and non-governmental organizations in lower- and middle-income countries in promoting and implementing policies called for in the WHO FCTC. The Campaign for Tobacco-Free Kids is a partner in the Bloomberg Initiative to Reduce Tobacco Use.

The ILC is a team of lawyers at the Campaign for Tobacco-Free Kids with extensive public health and international law experience, with regional specializations and in-depth knowledge of tobacco control law and policy. The ILC provides legal assistance on tobacco control legislation and litigation to governments and civil society organizations worldwide to promote robust and evidence-based tobacco control policies in line with the WHO FCTC. Since it was established in 2007, the ILC has provided legal technical assistance in over 90 countries.

The O'Neill Institute for National and Global Health Law at Georgetown University

The O'Neill Institute was established in 2007 through the generous philanthropy of Linda and Timothy O'Neill to respond to the need for innovative solutions to the most pressing national and international health concerns. Housed at Georgetown University Law Center in Washington D.C., the O'Neill Institute reflects the importance of public and private law in health policy analysis.

The essential vision for the O'Neill Institute rests upon the proposition that the law has been, and will remain, a fundamental tool for solving critical health problems in our local, national, and global communities. By contributing to a more powerful and deeper understanding of the multiple ways in which law can be used to improve health, the O'Neill Institute hopes to encourage key decision-makers in the public, private, and civil society sectors to employ the law as a positive tool to enable individuals and populations in the United States and throughout the world to lead healthier lives.

Kenyatta University School of Law

Kenyatta University School of Law (KUSOL) was established in 2008 and is located in the Parklands Campus of Kenyatta University in Nairobi, Kenya. KUSOL delivers innovative legal education which is student-focused and research-led. KUSOL embraces an integrated philosophy of teaching, research and community service. KUSOL's undergraduate programme is a pioneer in experiential legal education in which students undertake clinical work and placement as a central component of the law degree. KUSOL also runs the Kenyatta University Legal Aid Clinic which offers pro- bono legal aid services to ordinary citizens and provides students with clinical experience in case preparation, client interviewing, research and writing skills and networking. There is also a clinic specializing in the international economic law, a member of the global TradeLab network.

KUSOL has since 2012 produced over 1,000 lawyers from its undergraduate programme who are currently engaged as bar practitioners, judicial officers, corporate lawyers, in-house counsel and as post-graduate students in renown law schools globally.
