

Nigerian Yearbook of International Law

Editor-in-Chief: Chile Eboe-Osuji

Managing Editors: Engobo Emeseh, Olabisi D. Akinkugbe

Assistant Editors: Odo Ogwuma, Tamarakemiebi Koroye, Stephanie Diri

The Nigerian Yearbook of International Law (NYBIL) is an annual, internationally refered publication. Following the publication of its successful first volume, the Editors call for articles with in-depth analysis, short notes and Commentaries, and book reviews for publication in Volume 3 of the Yearbook (2020/21).

The NYBIL has as its main aim analysis of, commentaries on, and reporting of developments in international law that are mostly of relevance within the context of Nigeria in particular, Africa, the black diaspora of the world, and the developing world more generally. However, it is stressed that the publication is not exclusive in that regard: contributions from the perspective of the wider world are also strongly encouraged and welcomed.

Analysis of international law within the context of developing countries in general, the black diaspora, Africa and Nigeria in particular is an area of increasing scholarly and professional interest. We therefore welcome articles that engage in-depth with current and emerging global issues such as regional trade and investment, human rights, armed conflict, humanitarian intervention, transitional justice, international and transnational crimes, transnational migration, environment, international terrorism. The NYBIL provides an authoritative platform for focused analysis of these developments to be readily available to students, academics, practitioners, governments, and international bodies.

Submissions to the Yearbook is considered on a rolling basis. However, the closing date for submissions for Volume 3 is 31 July 2021.

Contributions must be original unpublished works and submission of contributions will be held to imply this.

Submissions should be provided in English and sent by email to the: nigerianyear-book.nybil@gmail.com

Manuscript submission guidelines

The NYBIL welcomes original contributions from scholars, lawyers, judges and professionals active in fields on topics within the scope of the Yearbook. The length of manuscripts should normally range between 8,000 and 12,000 words (including footnotes) for full-length articles; 2,000-3,000 words for commentaries and case notes; and 1,000-1,500 words for book reviews.

For all other inquiries and correspondence related to the NYBIL please contact the editors at nigerianyearbook.nybil@gmail.com with a copy to odo.ogwuma@icc-cpi.int>.

The following rules should be followed:

Referencing and style (including some examples)

For more details on referencing and style consult the Springer Key Style Points available at http://resource-cms.springer.com/springer-cms/rest/v1/content/3322/data/v5/Key+style+points. Please chose reference style Basic.

The following specific rules should also be followed:

Formatting

The Title Page should include the name(s) of the author(s), title of the work, affiliations of the author(s) and contact email. Additionally, a short abstract of 150-250 words should be included to summarise the content of the article. Up to three heading levels can be used within an article. The decimal system of numbering should be used (1, 1.1, 1.1.1,).

For the body of the text, a plain font (such as 11-point Times New Roman) should be used. Italics can be used within the text for emphasis, as well as for foreign words. Abbreviations should be written out in full at first mention with the abbreviation in parentheses.
